

Our vote matters.
Los Angeles County election process delivers a count
you can trust.

It is open, transparent, and secure with built-in strong safeguards to ensure every eligible vote is counted accurately and fairly.

“ In the last general election 3,793,106 valid ballots were cast and counted in Los Angeles County. ”

Los Angeles County elections have long been built around counting every eligible vote accurately, securely and fairly.

Integrity: Election integrity isn't something that begins or ends on Election Day. Administration of the election uses established safeguards, verification, auditing, public observation and certification procedures uniquely designed to protect the integrity of the vote.

Transparent: Angelenos can see for themselves how our elections work as the process is open to public observation.

Secure: Every ballot is checked and verified before being counted. Ballot verification, chain-of-custody procedures, paper ballots, security protocols, audits and certification provide multiple layers of review.

Accessible: Los Angeles County gives eligible voters multiple ways to participate.

Every Vote Counts: Election Night isn't the end of the vote count. Some ballots still need to be received by mail or require additional verification and rigorous review. Those steps continue with a secure and transparent process before the results are certified.

How The Count Works

The Los Angeles County Registrar's office is responsible for the administration of federal, state, and local elections.

- Over 600 Vote Centers across Los Angeles will be open for in-person voting, voter registration and Vote-by-Mail ballot returns.
- All active registered voters receive Vote by Mail (VBM) ballots
- Voters still have the option of voting in person on or before Election Day
- Every mail ballot is verified before it is counted
- Voting equipment is not connected to the internet. Los Angeles County uses Ballot Marking Devices (BMDs).
- The count can be observed in person at the LA County ballot processing center
